Hi Jacob,

Yes, your internship meetings absolutely count for the meetings requirement of option 2. If you are helping the with different project by contributing to work online in any way, that can also count toward generating online content. If you "meet" together via Zoom to work together on developing, I could consider that an "event" not just a meeting (meetings are about steering/group direction and documenting progress, while developing together would be a collaboration event). So I think you already have a lot there for Option 2.

Do you want to meet about the interviews? Are there a few times next week that would work for you?

Thanks!

Rachael
